DELEGATE GUIDE

MONDAY 24TH JUNE 2013 - CITY HALL, CARDIFF, WALES

Dear Delegate,

We welcome you to the second GRT National Symposium in Wales.

The National Symposium is a development of the annual Gypsy, Roma & Traveller History Month Workshop, inaugurated by Dr Adrian Marsh in 2010, that encourages members from Local Authority, Central Government and GRT communities to discuss openly the challenges experienced in accessing services and provision. In 2012, the symposium examined many issues facing these vulnerable communities, including health, education and policy development. Some key players joined us in an open debate about the future for Gypsies, Roma and Travellers including Dr Adrian Marsh and Professor Thomas Acton, OBE.

Once again this year, the message is extended to include the concerns regarding wider Romani communities across Europe and beyond. The situation in many countries in the European Union is a cause for profound concern, as the reviews of the EU Member States National Roma Integration Strategies have argued (<http://www.opendemocracy.net/bernard-rorke/national-roma-integration-strategies-failing-romani-children>). Beyond the borders of the EU, the economic and social conditions for Roma and other Gypsy groups grow more grave day by day. Many of the former eastern European Roma communities from Slovakia, Czech Republic, Bulgaria and Romania are now present in the UK and Wales in particular and they seek better opportunities for improved quality of life and access to services. In particular, this year's symposium is concerned to address the issues of migration, mobility and what is left behind, the main theme being 'Home'. It also seeks to raise awareness of the miserable living conditions of many Gypsies, Roma and Travellers in the UK, Europe and worldwide. The symposium aims to explore this situation in the presentations and workshops and to open and connect minds, to encourage policy makers and practitioners from all fields and services, to truly make a difference.

Speaker Biographies

Thomas Acton, OBE - Emeritus Professor of Romani Studies, University of Greenwich

Thomas Acton, O.B.E. (b.1948) ran the first Gypsy Council Caravan Summer School in 1967, helped organise the 1st World Romani Congress in 1971, finished his PhD on UK Gypsy politics in 1974, the year he joined Thames Polytechnic, which became the University of Greenwich, and where he is Emeritus Professor of Romani Studies. He is Patron of the Roma Support Group, and secretary of the Gypsy Lore Society and the Brentwood Gypsy Support Group.

Isaac Blake - Director - Romani Cultural & Arts Company, Cardiff

Born a Romani Gypsy, Isaac Blake is a professional choreographer and Artistic Director of the Romani Cultural and Arts Company, which is currently funded by the BBC Children in Need, Big Lottery, Cardiff City Council and Newport City Council. In 2000 he received a scholarship to attend a 3 year undergraduate Dance Theatre Course at Laban in London. While at LABAN, Isaac worked with numerous artists and companies including Adventures in Motions Pictures (AMP), DV8 and Rambert.

Since graduating from LABAN, Isaac has furthered his studies in New York and has choreographed performances at the Wales Millennium Centre and the Royal Welsh College of Music and Drama.

Utilising the skills as an Artistic Director Isaac Blake has raised the necessary funds to take arts development onto both Gypsy / Traveller sites and gadjo (non-Gypsy) communities across Wales. This project is close to his heart knowing how artistically barren these sites can be. But using arts Isaac has found a way to engage with children and young people.

Zena Brabazon

After university Zena spent 7 years community organising around children's services in Boston's poorest sections. The civil rights movement there was hugely influential. After establishing a successful charity for families with learning difficulties, she spent 20 years working for Haringey Council managing the Early Years & Play Service, developing first-class under 5s provision and Sure Start. In Regeneration she led on community involvement. She then worked in Islington and in 2010 was elected to Haringey Council. She is a magistrate in the Adult and Family Courts. In 2012 she started as a consultant for the OSF Early Childhood 'Kopaçi' programme.

Dr Margaret Greenfields - Director of the Institute of Diversity Research, Inclusivity, Communities and Society, Buckinghamshire New University.

Margaret Greenfields initially trained as a lawyer before undertaking a PhD in Social Policy at the University of Bath and subsequently becoming an academic. She has over 25 years of research and local and central Government policy experience in working with UK Gypsy and Traveller communities (and more latterly Roma migrants) as well as other 'excluded' populations such as refugee women. She is currently Director of the Institute for Diversity Research at Buckinghamshire New University. Margaret's present research interests include European inter-faith social justice practices which challenge xenophobia and racism and support Gypsies/Traveller/Roma – a study developed through her association with the Woolf Institute, University of Cambridge and undertaking partnership working around health needs assessments for Gypsy/Traveller/Roma populations. She is the author with David Smith of a forthcoming book entitled 'The Decline of Nomadism: Housed Gypsies and Travellers in Britain' (Policy Press, 2013).
